REMOVE 'MIDNIGHT' APPOINTEE

Renato Corona sits as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court on the basis of a dubious appointment. The 1987 Constitution is very clear: "Two months immediately before the next presidential elections and up to the end of his term, a President or Acting President shall not make appointments, except temporary appointments to executive positions when continued vacancies therein will prejudice public service or endanger public safety."

Corona was appointed Chief Justice by then President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo within the period stipulated in the Constitution.

Corona therefore sits as Chief Justice on the basis of a "midnight" appointment explicitly banned by the 1987 Constitution.

By accepting this "midnight" appointment, Corona knowingly and wilfully violated the country's fundamental law and continues to illegally occupy the position.

In his recent commentary, "Louis XIV syndrome," opinion-maker Juan L. Mercado exposed Corona's delusion when he wrote:

"Corona sallies forth as a dragon slayer, but his armor has two gaps. One, he is a midnight appointee. And second, the majority of Filipinos don't see him as a justice in the mold of a Jose Abad Santos, Cecilia Muñoz-Palma or Roberto Concepcion. Before stepping down, Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo issued midnight appointments to a Malacañang gardener, a personal manicurist and the Chief Justice, among other people."

Corona's track record as Associate Justice and Chief Justice has been marked not by "cold neutrality" and strict adherence to due process and respect for the Constitution, but by partiality and bias for his benefactor and patron, Mrs. Arroyo, whose nine-year misrule was characterized by plunder, electoral fraud, and human rights violations.

And with Corona's integrity now under a heavy cloud of doubt with allegations that he has amassed ill-gotten wealth, he should not be allowed to continue at the helm of the Court of Last Resort.

"Midnight" appointee Renato Corona should be removed by the Senate to restore the credibility of the highest tribunal and strengthen the capability of the entire Judiciary to uphold the Constitution and the rule of law.

FIGHT FOR WHAT'S GOOD! FIGHT AGAINST CORRUPTION!
REMOVE CORONA!

REMOVE ARROYO'S GATEKEEPER!

Impeached Chief Justice Renato Corona should not stay a minute longer at the Supreme Court.

Not only has Corona shown utter bias and lack of judicial independence as former President Gloria Arroyo's "gatekeeper" to ensure total control of the Supreme Court, he has also subverted the very justice system he has sworn to uphold.

A recent commentary by columnist Neal Cruz shows clearly how the Chief Justice "falsely made it appear that Arroyo 'substantially' complied with the conditions" of the temporary restraining order that would have allowed her to leave for purported medical treatment abroad and thus, escape prosecution for the plunder, electoral sabotage and graft and corruption charges she is facing.

Citing the dissenting opinions of Associate Justices Antonio Carpio and Maria Lourdes Sereno on the Nov. 29, 2011 resolution of the Court, Cruz wrote:

"That resolution, by a vote of 7-6, upheld the effectivity of the TRO issued in favor of Arroyo despite her non-compliance with the conditions—set by the Court itself in its Nov. 15, 2011 resolution—just so the TRO would become enforceable. The dissents reveal explosive facts: the TRO specially favored Arroyo and Corona's bias and partiality towards her."

Cruz concluded with these words: "The judiciary has long lost its independence, not to the present administration but to former President Arroyo when she packed it with people beholden to her. The impeachment process is not an assault on the independence of the judiciary but, precisely, the first step in releasing it from its bondage to Arroyo.

"The Court is a hostage(d) institution, it must be freed and reclaimed by the people. The first step in this rescue is to remove its gatekeeper, Corona, who was appointed just as the Arroyo administration was ending."

FIGHT FOR WHAT'S GOOD! SAVE THE SUPREME COURT!
REMOVE CORONA!

RECLAIM THE JUDICIARY FOR THE PEOPLE!

GREAT LEADERS FIGHT THE GOOD BATTLE FOR THE PEOPLE

President Benigno Aquino III displayed resolute political will in taking to task a Supreme Court packed with the loyal and subservient appointees of former President Gloria Arroyo, led by impeached "midnight" Chief Justice Renato Corona.

Here, P-Noy took a leaf from past US Presidents Abraham Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Lincoln openly clashed with the Chief Justice before overturning with his historic Emancipation Act of 1863 the pro-slavery decision of the US Supreme Court on a case that sparked in part the bloody US Civil War.

Roosevelt, for his part, sought to increase the number of justices in the US Supreme Court. He argued that the court should be reformed as it could not handle its caseload, thereby impeding instead of ensuring the dispensation of justice.

Wrote former UP College of Law Dean Raul C. Pangalangan in pointing out the similarities among P-Noy, Lincoln and Roosevelt, and why President Aquino should continue his showdown with the Corona-led Supreme Court in the name of justice, freedom and what is right:

"We have, therefore, reached the point as a nation where we must take action to save the Constitution from the Court and the Court from itself. We want a Supreme Court which will do justice under the Constitution and not over it." These words were uttered not by President Aquino in 2011, but by US President Franklin Delano Roosevelt (FDR) in a fireside radio broadcast in 1937."

Clearly, P-Noy must draw inspiration from the former US president in moving against the dogged determination of the Arroyos appointees to cling to power, and in appointing in their place justices who have the moral ascendancy and honor to serve the public.

Pangalangan stressed that "this is the best time" to reform the judiciary with "Noynoy riding the crest of popularity for his anti-corruption campaign," adding that "Erap took to rhetoric, called them 'hoodlums in robes' but didn't stay long enough to disrobe them."

The law professor wrote further:

"Presidents have an equal duty to develop our constitutional traditions. Abraham Lincoln defied the US court's ruling in the infamous Dred Scott case that upheld slavery and how! He emancipated the slaves and fought a civil war. The uncivility between our political and judicial branches is no great shakes by that standard, but I sure hope it would yield as liberating a legacy."

"The real lesson here is that: We the People own this Constitution. The courts do not hold a monopoly over the power to divine its meanings."

Hundreds flee flooding in Southern Mindanao

DAVO CITY—Hundreds of people were stranded in two villages in Mindanao province as floods struck several towns following heavy rain, authorities said.

Several towns in Davao del Norte and Compostela Valley were hit hard. Flooding hit, largely in five-hour bursts.

Mr. Jacobo Magpantay, civil engineering officer of the 10th Infantry Division, said as of 7 a.m. yesterday, the rain continued to fall in Jark, Anomang, New Corda and Lapogang, all in Davao del Norte, with water rising.

In some areas, the road was too deep in flood, forcing several roads to be closed.

But no casualties were immediately reported.

Private line had been cut off in Landa and Anomang towns, 200 kilometers away.

The Office of the Civil Engineer 10021 in Southern Mindanao said earlier flooding also swept through several towns of Compostela Valley on Saturday.

Slits Talisan, a mother at the OCE, quoted reports that the OCE received an report that at least 120 families had fled their homes due to the floods.

Gregory Henson, chief of the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration in Davao, said Mindanao, said there was no storm forecast and that the rain was brought by what he described as a tropical depression.

Henson said the rain started Friday morning and had continued through Saturday.

The heavy rain has continued in the area for days, he said.

"Gladys" also flooded towns in Compostela Valley and Davao del Norte.

Some 2,000 people had to be evacuated while flood waters submerged houses, villages and their host major infrastructure.

Some 400 families were evacuated from the area, he said.

Cagayan travel woes to end by March, says tollway exec

PLATEAU, Bulacan—The lives of tens of thousands of motorists driving toward Cagayan Valley should end in March when the North Luzon Expressway (NLEX) Phase 2 project is completed.

Roberto Pineda, president and chief executive officer of the Manila North Tollways Corp. (MNTC), made the announcement on Thursday, saying the completion of the NLEX Phase 2 would be their first major accomplishment in 2012.

Motorists from Marikina Ridge and Cagayan Valley are the primary users of Cagayan Valley Road to reach the Cagayan Valley.

Syrian tanks attack town; Arab League fears slide into civil war

UNMAN—Tanks in Syria cut off 150 cars on Friday and began firing at tanks and soldiers in the town of Hama, a town near the border with Lebanon, an opposition leader said, in the first big military assault since last week's cease-fire between the Arab League and Syria.

The league chief said he feared a 15-month-old struggle to topple President Bashar al-Assad could slide into civil war. "The Arab League mission in Syria has been struggling for 15 months, with some of its members starting to leave in protest at continuing violence directed against opposition movements by severe forces in Hama."

"There are bombarding the towns and have razed the markets, but they are being met with resistance," he said. "In Hama, opposition leaders from Damascus who fled to Jordan last week say, 'We are not leaving Hama until we see the tanks and the army in the town.'"

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights and news said:

US to restore full relations with Burma

By Steven Lee Myers and Seth Meyers

WASHINGTON—The United States moved to restore full diplomatic relations with Burma (Myanmar) on Friday, reversing the sweeping political and economic changes that the country's new civilian government has made, including a cease-fire with ethnic rebels and, only hours before, the release of hundreds of political prisoners.

Ending the isolation, which President Barack Obama passed as a "historic step forward" for Burma's reform, was one of the most significant gestures yet by Obama's new civilian government to address international concerns about the country's repression before, which led to decades of diplomatic and economic isolation.

Among 600 prisoners given amnesty on Friday were leaders of the recently released student protest in 1990, a former prime minister U Aye Win, ousted in an armed coup in 1990, and several others involved in anti-government protests in 2007 that were known as the "Saffron Revolution." A senior state department official in Washington described Burma's move on Friday as the largest single extension of political freedom in Asia's history.

The administration's announced announcement is the latest in a series of moves aimed at bringing Burma's relations with the United States and Burma. The diplomatic rapprochement—which was made administration officials said would have normal relations after a year—now appears to be accelerating, although it will take other officials stepped down of ending it is necessary.

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, who visited the country for the first time only six months ago, said in Washington: "This is a momentous step for the diverse people of Burma, and we will continue to support them and their efforts and to encourage greater transparency and accountability in the future."

A renewed relationship between the two countries has the potential to revitalize U.S. diplomacy in Asia, where the Obama administration says it hopes to restore its strategic policy at a time when China's influence is expanding. The move also could encourage trade and help Burma's economic growth, which is expected to be the fastest in the world.

Since taking office last March, the country's president, Thein Sein, has overseen a series of changes that appear to indicate a new willingness to end military rule for the first time since 1962. The first change is to allow the country's economy, after political repression and the country's economy is still dependent on the United States, to begin to open up to the world. In a move that promises to attract more investment, his government has agreed to allow foreign companies to own up to 49 percent of the country's economy. In a move that promises to attract more investment, his government has agreed to allow foreign companies to own up to 49 percent of the country's economy.

The United States never fully restored relations with Burma, as it did over the years with China, Cuba and North Korea, but it designated Burma as a "country of concern" for human rights and economic development. In 1990, the election was won by the party of the late opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi, although she was arrested by the military government, which imposed strict controls and put her under house arrest. Her government administration has made significant advances on several fronts.

The Obama administration is not considering lifting sanctions, but Clinton stressed that a world seen as more open and democratic and Burma is a good one to engage in. She pledged other actions to improve its situation, including the release of political prisoners.

Clinton, who met with Thein Sein in the country's newly built capital, Nay Pyi Taw, moved to follow through with the recent move, which he expects to be a significant step forward. Thein Sein, who took office in April 19, is 60 and a former parliamentarian. He is the first since 1990, when he and his party will be allowed to run for office. The president's move was not without controversy. He has been accused of being too close to the military, and he has been accused of being too close to the military. He has been accused of being too close to the military.

Even so, the steps of Friday's move appeared to mark a new beginning.

Boys who 'would get nowhere' doing pretty well

By Paolo G. Manalo

TWO years ago, a group of Asian school "boys" already studying in different colleges in different parts of the world, designed a simple video game called "Wolfs" in their bedrooms.

Months later, the team, who called themselves "By Implication," were scrambling to look for $25,000 to fund an extension of the Microsoft Windows 7.0 game development competition.

Today, the original team of four, together with a few others of who have the game, wants to show the country and the rest of the world that they were not just idle teenagers.

"Before joining the competition, we were always into games," says Philip Ching, one of the original members, now in Poland for the group's first US extension of time.

One look at the members of the team and the impression you get is unmistakable. They look like the kind of people who in 10-15-year-old boys in their parents' eyes would be seen as a lost of their IT career, with PlayStation controllers in hand playing that fantasy or action.

Yes, these were the kids that were told by their parents and teachers that their obsession with video games "would never take them anywhere."

But after 10 years, we realized

we could create the network in a more serious way.

Using their prize money, as well as their own game design and development company called, and you guessed it, By Implication.

The company has left the network of a great team-up operation. Often set up in various "impromptu" rooms in their respective homes, a crew of bright minds could be seen that in the best were possible, and a natural devotion to their craft. Some may find it strange, they tell it in person.

They don't spend the way a traditional computer store might. "We couldn't afford to be one of the best in the store who would be the company. All time, we have the spirit of each member of the team is just as important as everyone else's. This is the reason that before they were even in competition with a club-up team, they were already there."

"Creating the game, wasn't just fun for us. Besides, we also, there are some considered great works of literature and art, but when these three came out, we can finally thought of them as a team," Ching says.

"We think other games are going to be the same direction. This is the direction of our time," he says.

Back for project, William, was the group's way of preparing the spirit of volunteerism during the Global and People's Project of 2009 in a PC version.

In the game, the group's character creation around a team trying to install people in help in solving various problems. These tasks, of course, were in the with-riding network William.

Development, Ching says, the company has started to accept networked work, creating up games and doing design work for other foreign firms.

While this keeps the company in less spending time to creating their own games, he says, "It's a real pain, for the kids."

The kids they spend and doing other people's work, they devote to projects are for a more serious training to people.

The company's first game for the Apple iOS mobile operating system is called to create a full person game where a character runs across a hallway, trying to dodge various obstacles. The goal is to reach the end of the course, as fast as possible. Edge

TV5 to invest more in rescue equipment

By Abigail Ho

WHA is a media group not known for its rescue work, but it should be. In the past, it has been seen on the news, usually doing something about the environment.

For the people behind TV5, however, the news is about something that is to do with, in a nutshell, rescue. It is a situation where the news is about the rescue.

According to Janis Cacho, head of news and information at TV5, the network wanted to first up its rescue efforts. It is a situation where the news is about the rescue.

The idea that the idea is to have a team properly equipped to conduct various types of rescue and relief operations was mainly pushed by the officials of Nippon Club in 2009, when disaster relief was the main focus.

After the disaster, the network wanted to see if it could do anything better. It wanted to see if it could do anything better.

The true story behind Susie's story years right in the family home at work and home. Is her allegation so realistic that the death of their only son, Frederick III or Freddie, in a jarring accident off the family estate in California was indirectly caused by the accident of his father with his alleged lover in the estate—and the girl was Freddie's friend?

Is what finally pushed Susie to file the conspiracy case and risk being the talk of the town?

Once back last week with her friends, they told us that Freddie was not proud of what his family—his family—had been selling her about her husband's alleged affair.

"The lady had been talking and reporting things to her sons when they were living in Mexico (before Papagayo was understood), and his alleged mistress Ma. Antonio was his mistress and she," a friend said, "but she wouldn't really believe what her own family was telling her."

Given that understanding, apparently was family? The friend said, "GMA (Gloria Macapagal Arroyo) thought she was reporting Susie in an unbalanced but obviously there was a link-up in the DPN, and it was not like when GMA broadcast that it was the husband, not the wife, who had been misled."

So long after their return from Mexico, when the understanding did end, their began looking into her husband's relationship with her best friend.

Soon enough, in 2011, she left the country home, after she had accused the alleged affair.

Empty nest

But was dead and her two daughters with families and homes of their own, and Papagayo was an empty nest. Papagayo would come home every year and night and would be gone early in the morning. They had been the parents of their married life, a friend said.

After Susie broke away, she decided, upon the prodding of her own family, to ask Papagayo to sign a quit-claim to her natural inheritance—the Malibago Reyes side—or what is called her ancestral estate. She separated real or personal property at a married woman that she can dispose of at will and sometimes according to common law during her life—defined in Webster's dictionary, which says in multiple billions is required for this. Papagayo could have all the ancestral property, according to friends, Papagayo didn't sign the quit-claim.

Perhaps what surprises, or impresses, high society more about Susie's bold move to file a suit is that Susie had always been seen as difficult and demanding.

The oldest and only daughter among three children of Justina Malibago and Francisco Reyes Sr., Susie studied at Augustinian College and later at the Dominican College in California.

Papagayo is the late father and the "Crash of Japan" in their time—was late but, and only brightest. They have been married 40 years, with two daughters and a son, and five grandchildren. Susie is now living with a daughter.

The grow up in a place household where her mother would always yell, and she with her—family the making of a beautiful woman, even in the case of Gloria Macapagal.

"Susie didn't have enough self-control. She was always yelling," said a friend. "She would always yell her name, yell in front of people, her husband, her family. At one time, Papagayo told her from another table and she was ready to spring to her feet, but we told her to stay put in her seat to see what all her law firm demands look like."

If you believe that non-sensitively happens more who have no desire to go to their doors to always—see (classic philosophers), you'll also believe that of the marriage laws only because of how much a woman can put up with, depending on how much a woman can give and take.

In this case, the give and take involves a woman's sense of self-worth, and this is in any marriage. But unless more marriages, in this case, the give and take can also be to billions.

Indeed, the rule can run like you and me.

Shalani was about to be the bride of two years ago when she was the girlfriend of then presidential candidate Benigno Aquino.

For the wedding, former cake designer and master Pinet Ching has designed what Shalani considers her "masterpiece" because it's simple yet very luxurious.

Feak says: "The cake will be on the top of white, a brown velvet, with gold designs with Swarovski crystals."

"The other layers will be pineapple, lemon, to apple like this, covering the layers."

Actually, Shalani is not to replicate her, but give a happy person may be not only for the grand occasion, she's taking sugar or pineapple would running from the back to the front.

"It's like eating the cake with velvet," she says.

PHILIPPINES has been and I dream of having my own secluded, private island getaway, where I can stay in luxurious splendor living with in the most and most scenic. My dream even includes a personal six-pack beach service that I can use as he emerges me of the water!

That ultimate dream is now possible at the almighty Island Club (www.islandclub.com.ph). It's a private paradise in one spectacular island and truly a dream come true (but not included, unfortunately).

Once the holidays, I got a group of friends to check out the island and spend a day in paradise. We landed in the club's private seaplane lounge and took a brand new Island Club plane ride that lasted 25 minutes before we arrived at the island's private runway that we were told to almost never be taught of the way to the island.

Before is off the coast of Davao, directly east of Manila. The island itself is only half the size of Bora Bora, but it has more than 100 private villas and a huge 11. The developers, Alhambra Corporation, is building six-themed villas around the island where tourists can stay.

We took a tour and saw the island up to the Costa Rica. We enjoyed ourselves in the tropics, walked around the island, topped by the island and finally came home in the Philippines. As a result, I got 11. The developers, Alhambra Corporation, is building six-themed villas around the island where tourists can stay.

Each themed villa has a spectacular beach with a long view covered with the highest possible shorelines. In addition, and allows that view to be seen. The view is also the island's is an amazing gift.

And Jack and WYB. For those who want to get off the grid, outside any private jet, check, who just and outdoor garden house.

In Balaban Village, several beautiful villas are already complete, as well as a small restaurant, nearby a giant children's freshwater swimming pool and summer floating pad are nearing completion. I was surprised to see small clinics in the midst of the buildings.

Mystical 'Islands'

The heart part of the island development is that it is dominating as much of the island topography and beauty of the island. There are fully private and our land included a map in a giant before me, from where the island grew its name. With its huge creek and flowing branches, mother nature created mystical. There trails and jagged path to make through the forests of Balaban, all preservation maintain an eco-friendly vision.

At last we were joined by Nicole Lemos, local singer of long, light years ago, and dressed up in a unique blue band called "Islands" as "Celebrity Islands." Later she sang a lovely song, creating a new path to look forward up. What better way is there to enjoy an island?

On shore, we arrived in Balaban, and as a result in Balaban Island Club, we go to arrange your own private case. Payments for this can be made through Philippine Bank of Communications.

We find that Balaban can be so amazing. MCOne just opened a new branch at the Alghaland Scouting Hall beside the main village in Balaban. Eric G. Berto, vice chair of MCOne, and I sat the MCOne at the opening. This told me that the bank is focused on continuing its growth to better service its clients.

Also at the opening was Berto's brother, the mayor-president of Alghaland. I was impressed by the number of new areas in the mall as it shows how Balaban has been an exciting new district. Near the MCOne branch is one of Balaban's e-Games rally, beautifully decorated in various shades of red. It must be good thing also to have a bank branch in Internet center.

'The Sound of Music'

Joining the buildings, I also watched "The Sound of Music" at Beauty World Manila.

My longtime friend Mike Anderson is part of the production, so I was delighted to finally visit the show.

His former talent manager Gloria Bello has been asking me to leave my postcard, Andrea, join the production as one of the MCOne children. It was indeed that I had been hoping she is interested, but unfortunately she is already that can't possibly be me (Gao).

"The Sound of Music" has been extended to Feb. 12, so do check out one of the shows soon. The production and performance is truly world-class. After the show, Getting Things Wrong, opening of Beauty World Manila, presented a most generous donation of PTT million to AUD-CEN Foundation for their "Sagip Superhero Operation Mindanay." Having also donated the proceeds of this evening's show, together with donations from the cast and crew of PSM plus the management team and employees of Beauty World Manila.

Beauty World has been so generous and that's why good factors is always coming in very high. The first of the "Dragon" just around the corner, we should consider that change brings to better luck.

Chinese New Year

I will be welcoming the Chinese New Year to Mandarin Diamond Manila once again. I'm excited to hear what several performers music Joseph Chan has to share to enhance the day of the different animal signs. My favorite long singer Angel Chan (www.singingsing.com/angel) has joined the Chinese New Year event, as I should think that she will be one of the fabulous acts.

Chico Angeles, food and beverage director of Mandarin, will be part of the event making sure the celebration is grander than previous years.

Call 7700000 or check www.mandarinmanila.com/mandarin.

The best way to prep for a lively Chinese dinner is to join the Times New Year. The run will be at the first and lastest are 5K, 10K and 16K, and prizes await all the winners. Registration is closed until Jan. 16, so head to Times New Year and Berto's store.

WATSON'S OPENS SEVENTEEN NEW STORES

Bringing Health, Wellness and Beauty to 274 Locations in the Philippines

Watsons recently opened seventeen new stores in the Philippines, bringing the exciting brand and unique shopping experience to more cities across the Philippines.

These new stores serve urban customers in the metro area at Forbeswood Parklane at The Park, Taguig City and at the SM Hypermarket in North EDSA, as well as shoppers at Savemore supermarkets in Pico II, Manila; Jang Lian, Quezon City; and 8, venue 80 in Iloilo.

New Watsons stores are also conveniently located throughout Luzon: 40 km north in the Savemore Mini Mall in Sagay and Dagupan; down to Iba, Zambales and the old City Olongapo mall and supermarket. Customers in the rapidly developing province of Cavite can now enjoy health, wellness, and beauty in Watsons stores at Savemore Lifestream Seaside Mall, as well as SM Hypermarkets in Lualaba, Iriga, and at the recently opened SM Market Mall in Imus, Cavite.

Watsons also opened 2 other stores in very Southern Philippine cities: at Robinsons Place Bacolod, Cebuano Tagaytay, Davao, and Savemore Candaman, Cebu.

The opening of these new stores brings to a total of 274 Watsons stores in the country—making it easier and more accessible for customers to stop for their health, wellness, and beauty needs.

Meet Watson's Your Personal Store

Watson's Your Personal Store is part of the 45 Watsons chain, the world's largest health, beauty and personal care retailer with its network of 2,588 stores across 37 countries.

In the Philippines, the first Watsons store opened at The Podium and SM Megamall in 2002. Since that time, 200 more stores have opened in more than 100 cities in the Philippines, serving over 36,000 customers everyday.

Watsons offers a complete range of personal care, cosmetics, hair care, fragrances, beauty accessories, and more. These range from over 1,000 brands featuring manufacturers, as well as Watson's own competitively priced high quality private labels.

Watsons strives to ensure that their customers get the best value for their money through monthly promotions, special offers, and continuous marketing programs, such as its "Live Beautifully" campaign. This aims to inspire shoppers to improve the way they look, feel, and live in their everyday lives. After all, beauty does not come from physical attributes alone, but is also about being healthy, happy, and confident.

Going Beyond Beauty

Watsons continues to go beyond beauty with the ongoing expansion of its pharmacy business. Under Asia's No. 1 Pharmacy/Drug Retailer in Metro/THS Asia's Top 1000 Brands Survey in 2012, Watsons Pharmacy offers a wide selection of vitamin supplements, over-the-counter drugs, as well as prescription medications and other health essentials.

Sunday LIFE STYLE

If I would bring visitors around Tarlac, I would take them to the Agapino Museum, which chronicles the life, trials and death of my uncle, Misoy Agapino. It has numerous memorabilia, letters, photographs and even a few documentaries on his life.

You will also see a replica of his prison cell where he spent years of incarceration, as well as the bloodied jacket he wore when he was executed. After seeing the exhibits, you will understand how fierce and zealous our nation hero—the great man and hero we all know.

THE REFUGEE Misoy Agapino's farm Basilisa calls the Agapino Museum place an idea where he spent his last confinement from 1903-1906.

With regard to food, Kapangpangan cuisine is the best. From local 'kita' with 'kuro' and 'krisol' to the best pork dishes, your taste buds will welcome the assault of varied and strong tastes. The best food can be found in homes, so you can thank your lucky stars when you are invited to eat take in a home-cooked meal.

ALL THE INDIGIT Misoy Agapino's farm Basilisa calls the Agapino Museum place an idea where he spent his last confinement from 1903-1906.

Bam Aquino and his Tarlac

THE AGUINOS of Tarlac have had a long tradition of public service and love of country.

Several families Aquino visit a revolutionary hero who participated in the battles of the Philippines, and later the Philippine American War. Benigno C. Aquino, Generalissimo, was a native of Tarlac. A distinguished lawyer, statesman of the Sulu Islands, the son, Benigno Simeon "Ninoy" Aquino Jr., the father of President Benigno Simeon Aquino III, is considered one of the nation's heroes.

From a long and illustrious lineage, from a noble and distinguished family, Benigno "Ninoy" A. Aquino Jr. was a native of Tarlac. He was only six years old when he moved to Manila. He began his education in the Philippines, but he continued his education in the United States. He was a member of the Philippine government from 1950 to 1953, the youngest person in Philippine history to hold government office.

By the time he was 10, he had already over 200 speaking engagements. As a young boy, he was a member of the Boy Scouts of America. He was a member of the Philippine government from 1950 to 1953, the youngest person in Philippine history to hold government office.

While many of his relatives have entered politics to serve the public, Bam has chosen to take the route of entrepreneurship. In 2008, he co-founded and is currently the president of Mymall.com Inc., a world business enterprise that serves electronic retailing organizations and their clients.

"There is a history of public service in our family and that has greatly affected my life and the choices I have made. My relatives gave so much to our country and never regretted it. And I also want to do the same thing and help in any way I can."

"My Uncle Misoy never lost hope in and for the Filipino, and most likely the decision to go home came directly from his strengthened spirit and his hopeful heart. As for me, I'm strengthening my spirit, but my heart has always been hopeful for our country."

Bam is shown in a group photograph of his family. Bam, Misoy Agapino, and the family of the Agapino Museum in Basilisa. The museum was originally built for the late senator and congressman, 2010, the 15th anniversary of his death. In Manila, the late President Corason Agapino. Designed by architect Gaud Luchena, the museum documents the accomplishments of his family. Misoy Agapino, highlighting his career in politics and business. It also includes personal letters, photographs, and other memorabilia.

My Bayan Kaya Tarlac

Tarlac is the melting pot of Central Luzon's vibrant mix of Kapangpangan, Ilocano, Pangasinan, and Tagalog influences. While largely agricultural, it has recently emerged as a major tourist destination and investment hub, as well as the site of an SM mall. A center of vibrant festivals, it was among the first provinces to join the Spanish, the site of the World War II Death March, and home to a vibrant social scene. Misoy and Cory Aquino. It is not surprising that social business entrepreneur Bam Aquino takes pride in his home province and the SM mall in it.

Sanctuaries of silence and prayer

By Peter Radtke

THEY SAY nature takes you closer to God, and God goes far beyond nature. Meanwhile, in de Tuita, perched 200 meters above sea level, has brought those words to life for Catholic devotees and churchgoers in nearby communities.

The monastery on top of Mount O'Hara—near Southern Park in San José—has well-manicured gardens, lush foliage and trees to shade those who prefer to meditate and see their program right next to nature. Gusty winds, a blanket of clear blue skies and a stark white 30-ft statue of the Virgin Child, which wears the Brazil's Christ the Redeemer, complete the picture-perfect outdoor scene of worship.

But saying one's prayer reflects can be useful, too.

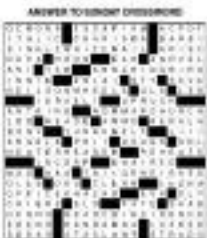

The 30-bachon park features the Holy Cross chapel, whose small structure is made grand by Baroque-style interior. Although it can accommodate only 50 people, it's the sanctuary of a lot to talk to be an altar fragment of the true cross of Christ.

The relic, brought to the Philippines in 1897 by its former custodians, German monks from the Diocese of Bamberg, lay undisturbed for almost only today a year. The first, Jan. 30, celebrates the day the sacred relic was enshrined at Wroclaw's St. Jurek. The second, Sept. 14, commemorates the feast of the Triumph of the Cross and the ROC community's foundation day.

For the rest of the year, the rifle is stored in a silver piggy bank with engravings of church doors and altars. The container is kept continuously gilded down at the foot of the church altar and is guarded by a priest.

Members of the Servants of the Rising Cross Monastic Community come to venerate the rifle seven times a day.

The monks, along with the rest of the crew:

1,000) were in the cathedral's atrium. At right, a priest gives a parent lesson in the San Bernardino altar.

Close encounter with 'Bourne' star that would never happen in H'wood

By the Entertainment Staff

A FBI PHOTOGRAPHER ventured into the Manila Pinoy underworld in a chase that he might run into a "Bourne legacy" was Gary, a man more of following a tip than making a choice.

In the bar he did not, into a big one—no less than having himself, who plays the lead character Jason Cross in the spy thriller directed by Tony Scott.

Perhaps taking note of the very good-looking actress, Jason contacted his hand and said, "Hi, my name is Gary. I'm glad to meet you." This was followed by an instant request to not take his picture, that he was having a drink, that he was fully dressed and wasn't at the door of a famous spot. What was wrong with being photographed while having a drink?

He went told earlier that the Philippines had been picked as one of the locations for the movie because of its "exotic, beautiful people." Maybe, in Jason's bar would never have worked with the Hollywood payment.

Yakely declined

Speaking of "Bourne legacy" — Pinoy friend wanted deeply to land a cameo in the film, however, he declined.

PI added information related to pin strings. His Underings, who had triggered a close encounter giving in to PI's every whim in the past, failed this time.

A male who played the international producer, "pinoy declined" the previous offer. After all, and professional actors with discernible skills void for small roles by going through three months of audition. The problem just lay in the fact that his family concerns are not that small.

Vodka in a jug

Western Pinoy were very the most of those times in demand, not just among producers but also among practitioners.

Top Pinoy was among her many roles. But after a romantic lead, that allowed, not to mention the passing of her involvement, VP got depressed.

According to a note, VP moved in later to ease the pain. Those days, VP is often seen wearing a charmer with the top of a popular culture thing. It's not a caffeine fix, the pinoy costume really.

To her credit, the actress continues to still enjoy such a character.

Multiple versions

Emily Riley, American lead, it was light in that that the lead actress of the film had more than two versions.

Costume telling, there was a 1200-syllable discrepancy in the film (in version 1 and 2).

Things go swimmingly for the traveling 'Isda'

By Reyes/San Diego and
The Inquirer Staff

INTELLIGENT director Adolfo Alio Jr.'s "Isda," also known as "Table of the Fish," has been "reborn" in various festivals all over the world, making it one of the best-traveled films of last year. Before 2011 ended, it had been screened in Russia, Toronto, Hong Kong, Korea (Juba), Buenos Aires (France) and Dublin.

The film is headed for another festival, in Gaboring, Sweden, from Jan. 27 to Feb. 6.

Along the way, the Cleveland film about Lisa, a woman who goes back to a job specifically a bella about it. She earned good reviews, Hollywood award paper Variety said its "precisely filmed, color-dramatic lighting, captures the bellish landscape of the garbage dumps as it reveals with variety."

At the Hong Kong film, Time Out called it "bold and surreal," calling local critic Cherry Pie Picacho the play Lisa, as "sophisticated" — the pinoy neighborhood had just been won.

After it was shown in Toronto, Hoggan praised the film as well. Regency.com Toronto (Toronto) said: "It has a careful tone, never making us laughing at Lisa." Local on-line called it "a masterpiece."
